Abstract

The writer in this paper writes about the concept of dialogue, and the similar words which are used by people to express the same meaning. Many words used as a substitute for the term dialogue demonstrates the importance of the topic. Dialogue is a human effort in which people are exposed to the right and wrong and when it is not. In addition to that, the paper explain the view of Islam of dialogue.

The importance of dialogue in the different fields is also researched. Humans need to be in successful dialogue with himself, and a permanent dialogue with God. His success in the dialogue with God and with himself prepares him to the success when dealing with others. And yet be the same as an affirmation of its success with others.

The paper dealt then with the two elements of dialogue; i.e. subject and the two parties. This was written in a new and innovative way which was not matched previously. Then the paper dealt with the conditions of dialogue shortly indicating the importance of those conditions to find a serious and meaningful dialogue leading to useful results.

This research as a whole demonstrates the importance of dialogue, and the need to put rules and principles to control the behavior of the interlocutors and help them to reach acceptable results.
