The Non-Governmental Organizations & Globalization

Ebraham Abd-El Hameed Mustafa

Abstract

The role of Non-Governmental Organization (NGO's) is going fast. The wide-spread services of such organizations have made it more influential than governmental and private ones. With the surge of globalization, the role of NGO's in opposing it as well as opposing Free trade Agreement has increased because of the worry that poverty and injustice will be a major outcome of such thing. NGO's is also opposing the western policies in dominating the world by such treaties.

The question that need to be asked more than any thing else is "What is the role of NGO's is the current world of globalization and universal change?" What would be its influence on globalization? To answer such questions, I had to devote a chapter to define globalization and its characteristics.

I also devoted another chapter for NGO's, history and dimensions. I also defined social work and its organizations explaining all of the various expressions related to social contribution in it dealing with the relation between NGO's and governmental bodies and the nature of this relationship. This was in chapter 5.

In the forth chapter, I wrote about the effect of NGO's oppose globalization and promotes the coherence of the society by supporting the most affected groups. I also dealt with the spread of the philosophy of NGO's worldwide.

In the fifth chapter, I tried to explore a future vision for NGO's by proposing few suggestion that could help them in the era of globalization.
